The International Conference on Population and Development was held in Cairo from 5 to 11 September 1994. At its forty-ninth session, the General Assembly, having considered the report of the Conference (A/CONF.171/13 and Add.1), requested the Secretary-General to prepare periodic reports for the substantive sessions of the Council on the flow of financial resources for assisting in the implementation of the Programme of Action of the Conference; requested the specialized agencies and all related organizations of the United Nations system to review and, where necessary, adjust their programmes and activities in line with the Programme of Action, and invited them to report to the Council at its substantive session of 1995; decided that the Assembly, the Council and the Population Commission (to be renamed the Commission on Population and Development) would constitute a three-tiered intergovernmental mechanism that would play the primary role in the follow-up of the implementation of the Programme of Action and, to that end, decided that the Council, in assisting the Assembly, would promote an integrated approach, provide system-wide coordination and guidance in the monitoring of the implementation of the Programme of Action and make recommendations thereon and that the Commission, which should meet on an annual basis, would monitor, review and assess the implementation of the Programme of Action at the national, regional and international levels and advise the Council thereon.

The Assembly requested the Council to discuss relevant matters concerning the implementation of population and development programmes, as well as matters concerning harmonization, cooperation and collaboration within the United Nations system regarding the implementation of the Programme of Action and to discuss the reports submitted by the different bodies and organs on various matters related to the Programme of Action; and invited the governing body of the United Nations Population Fund to oversee, on a regular basis, the response of the Fund to the needs of countries regarding activities to strengthen national population and development programmes and to report to the Council on that matter. The Assembly also requested the Commission on Population and Development, at its twenty-eighth session, to review, within its area of competence, the Programme of Action and its implications and to transmit its views to the Council at its substantive session of 1995. They also address the need to keep the format of the List under continuing review, in cooperation with the relevant organizations of the United Nations system, with a view to its improvement, taking into account its complementary nature, the experience obtained and the views expressed by Governments. At its forty-fourth session, the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General, in the context of the preparation of his next scheduled report on the question, to make specific suggestions on ways and means of providing technical cooperation, including through appropriate United Nations organizations, to countries, in particular developing countries, to create and strengthen their capacity to utilize the Consolidated List; and to study all the pending issues, such as sustainable alternatives to banned and severely restricted products and unregistered pesticides, with a focus on improving the usefulness of the Consolidated List (Assembly resolution 44/226, sect. Item 7. Regional cooperation in the economic, social and related fields

The Council will consider the report of the Secretary-General on regional cooperation and take the necessary action on the decisions and recommendations of the regional commissions contained therein.

The Council will also have before it the summaries of the surveys of regional economic and social conditions prepared by the regional commissions, highlighting the main problems and prospects of those regions. At its first regular session of 1979, the Council decided to discontinue the submission to it of the reports of the regional commissions (decision 1979/1). The reports are transmitted directly to all Member States. The Secretary-General, in his annual report on regional cooperation, in addition to reporting on the meetings of the executive secretaries, highlights developments within each region and draws the Council's attention to specific issues requiring its consideration. The report of the Secretary-General will bring to the Council's attention any decisions or recommendations of the Commissions that statutorily require approval by the Council. A section of the report will deal with the question of interregional cooperation in social development: the impact of international migration in countries of destination and countries of origin (decision 1995/206).
